

CHAOS MUST CEASE

Brazil Newspapers See German Hand Back of Mexico.

Rio Janeiro, June 23.—The crisis between Mexico and the United States is being followed with keen interest in Brazil and occupies a large space in the newspapers. The general tone of the editorial comment is that President Wilson, while actuated by the best motives, has run afoul of preponderant elements in Mexico which are under German influence. In official circles hope is expressed that war will be averted, but it is fully recognized that the continued disorders in Mexico must end in wearying the most sincere well-wisher of the country. There is a general agreement that some end must be put to the present intolerable situation so that the pacific development of the peoples of American nations may be assured.

REAL CAMP LIFE

Battery A Boys Sleep First Night on Ground.

Five Thousand Topekans Spend Evening With Friends.

FAREWELLS ARE MADE BRIGHT

For Married Men, Knowing Families Will Be Cared For.

Taps Blown Half an Hour Late at Fair Grounds.

"You're in the army now. You're in the army now. You son-of-a-gun, you're done with fun. You're in the army now."

It was an old camp song well known to the old "vets" of Battery A, who number several Fort Riley encampments to their credit. Several of the "recruits" took it up and it speedily became popular Thursday afternoon. There are ninety-nine other verses but they all reflect the same sentiment.

Nearly five thousand Topekans came out to the camp Thursday night. Gaily dressed girls and hundreds of autos figured in the crowd but the occasion was not a gala one. The hurrying and excitement that marked the other evenings in camp were absent.

Lieut. James Hughes, officer of the day, instructed the bugler to blow "taps" half an hour later to give opportunity to the battery men to say their farewells.

Real Farewells Last. Darkness found the merely curious of the onlookers gone. The real farewells were said then. In many cases it was to the mothers, sisters and wives, but the majority of partings were of a different character.

The reputation of springtime being the supreme seasonal promoter of engagements has been pushed from its pinnacle. It is "war-time" that really causes the rings to grow on fourth fingers of left hands where none grew before.

Several partings were between wives and husbands; scenes which were a little less sorrowful than those of the previous evening since the news had gone round that the families of the battery members were to be taken care of by Topeka citizens.

Searches for Son. One little woman had made the round of the "camp street" time after time in search of her son. The call to quarters was blown. She was almost ready to give up in despair. Then the battery wagon, filled with men who had been working at the armory, drove up and her name was called and the missing son jumped out and came to her.

At 9:30 "taps" was sounded and shortly afterwards there was not a light to be seen, except in First Sergeant Wilson's tent. Sergt. W. A. Brady of the regular army, and Sergeant Wilson worked far into the night planning the details of the loading of the men and the tents.

The men slept on the ground, their cot having been loaded. It was their first touch of a real soldier's life and to many of the younger ones Mother Earth was a failure as a sleep producer.

SEASONED MEN

Twelve Officers of Guard Members of Twentieth Kansas.

Sixty of Them Were Born in the Sunflower State.

Twelve of the 128 commissioned officers of the Kansas National Guard were officers in the famous Twentieth Kansas regiment that fought under Gen. Frederick Funston in the Philippines, according to a roster of the officers of the guard just published. Out of these 128 officers but thirty have seen regular service in the army, the roster shows. Kansas volunteer regiments in the Spanish-American or Philippine wars furnished sixteen officers now holding commissions. Four saw service in other state volunteer regiments and the regular and volunteer United States army and navy have furnished ten of the officers for the guard.

Sixty of the officers are native-born Kansans, the report shows. Illinois, with thirteen, furnished the largest number of any other state. Only six of the officers were in the state militia prior to 1890, according to the report, which shows that Col. Perry M. Hollington of Newton is the oldest officer in point of service, having enlisted first in the Michigan light guard in 1875. Col. Wilder S. Metcalf is the next oldest officer. He first wore a uniform as member of the Ohio infantry in 1884.

Following are the Twentieth Kansas men holding commissions today in the Kansas National Guard with their rank when mustered out of the United States army:

Brig. Gen. C. I. Martin, major; Col. Wilder S. Metcalf, brevet brigadier general United States volunteers, member national military board since 1911; Lieut. Col. Charles S. Flanders, captain; Major William J. Watson, captain; Major Jerry C. Springstead, private; Major Clad Hamilton, captain; Capt. Albert H. Krause, captain; Capt. Seth A. Hammel, hospital steward; Capt. Herman C. Colegrove, private; First Lieut. Bruce E. Stryker, corporal; First Lieut. William J. Wood, private; Second Lieut. Joseph W. Murray, sergeant.

The Twenty-first Kansas volunteer infantry contributed the following commissioned officers in the Kansas National Guard:

Major John H. O'Connor, sergeant major; Capt. Charles S. Gibbs, second lieutenant; Capt. John R. Thompson, corporal.

WOULD RECRUIT "VETS"

Civil War Veteran Wants Regiment of Blue and Gray Units.

Dallas, Tex., June 23.—Gen. Charles L. Martin, Confederate veteran, will tender his services to the war department for the raising of a regiment in Texas of Civil war veterans, composed of both Federals and Confederates—to man the forts on the Mexican border.

"We are too old to march," he said, "but we could garrison the forts."
